Smart Kids with Learning Disabilities Announces the 2022 Fred J. Epstein Youth Achievement Award

We are now accepting nominations for the 2022 Fred J. Epstein Youth Achievement Award, a $1,000 award that recognizes the strengths and accomplishments of young people with learning disabilities and ADHD. It will be given to a student 19 or younger who has demonstrated initiative, talent and determination resulting in a notable accomplishment in any field—including art, music, science, math, athletics or community service. Honorable Mentions will also be awarded.

The award will be presented either virtually or in person at the annual Smart Kids with Learning Disabilities Benefit at a time and place to be determined. Transportation and hotel accommodations will be provided for the winning student and his/her parents if the Benefit is held in person.

The winner of the 2021 Award is Serena Chen of Milpitas, CA. Diagnosed with ADHD and other challenges, Serena is the founder of www.neurodiver-city.org, an international student community website. She is an accomplished musician, winning national and international competitions, and performed principal trumpet with the San Francisco Symphony and National Honor Band at Carnegie Hall. She is now a freshman at Columbia University.

Kyla Walsh of Crestwood, KY received a Special Recognition Award. Four students received Honorable Mention awards. To view the 2021 award winners, please visit <https://www.smartkidswithld.org/blog/smart-kids-recognizes-youth-achievements/>

“Neurodiver-City was founded to foster a safe environment, to eliminate misconceptions, reduce stigma, establish a supportive community of neurodiverse individuals, and to embrace neurodiversity.” — SERENA CHEN

“What I say to children with learning disabilities is: We're like anybody else in terms of intelligence. But we're wired differently. If we were in the majority, we'd be trying to figure out how to teach them!”
